

Science and Math Tutors Wanted

Do you have a passion for teaching and mentoring? Then we'd love for you to join us! iEducate is looking for college students interested in impacting public elementary school education during actual classroom hours. We pay and train our tutors to be the role models that inspire our future scientists, engineers, and leaders. You will be working in the elementary school between your class days, giving back to your community while earning some extra money to pay for college! iEducate offers opportunities to develop leadership skills. Once a part of the iEducate family, you will benefit from Industry experts who will help with your professional development, including career counseling, resume writing, interview skills as well as visits to the Schlumberger campuses organized through our partnership with them.
